This case concerns the alleged bribery of New York State Senator, JOSEPH GALIBER by the late ALPHONSE "SONNY RED" INDELICATO to introduce a bill to minimize a parolee's term of imprisonment upon conviction for a crime committed while he was on parole. [REDACTED]

b3

Additionally, surveillances were conducted during which MASSELLI, IMBRUGLIA, GABLER and SAM FRIEDMAN (an IMBRUGLIA associate) met and again when MASSELLI and INDELICATO met. This file also contains an FD 302 of interview with ALPHONSE INDELICATO on February 20, 1980, during which he denied any plot to bribe GALIBER concerning the "returned parolee's bill".

Writer has conducted complete New York indices checks on JOSEPH GALIBER, WILLIAM MASSELLI, JOSEPH BUGLIARELLI, SAMUEL FRIEDMAN, JOSEPH IMBRUGLIA, and PHILIP BUONO, with no new information concerning this alleged bribe being found.

AUSA [REDACTED] Southern District of New York, was contacted on July 24, 1985, advised of the facts, as known,

Senate unit eyes $

Tunnel probe widens

By HARRISON RAINIE
and RICHARD SISK

The Senate joined the growing list of agencies investigating the 63d St. subway tunnel yesterday with the announcement that hearings will be held on how $580 million in federal funds was spent on the waterlogged project.

A spokesman for Sen. Mark Andrews (R-N.D.), chairman of the transportation appropriations subcommittee, said that Andrews would order the hearings. No time or place for the hearings has been set, but it was expected that the subcommittee would hold them in New York after Labor Day when Congress returns from its August recess.

A spokesman for the Metropolitan Transportation Authority said, "The Senate has a right to investigate where federal funds are involved," but added that "there are no secrets on how the money was spent."

MORE THAN $800 million in federal, state and city funds has been invested in the project, with $580 million coming from the federal Urban Mass Transportation Administration.

UMTA last week suspended an additional $313 million for the tunnel until an independent consultant reviews its structural integrity. Recent inspections disclosed that the lower-level sections of the two-tier tunnel had been under 5 feet of water.

In June, Sen. Alfonse D'Amato (R-N.Y.) met with Brooklyn U.S. Attorney Raymond Dearie to request an investigation into possible criminal mismanagement of the project.

An investigation by Bronx District Attorney Mario Merola last year led to the fraud and conspiracy indictment of Schiavone Construction Co., a main contractor for the tunnel, and then Labor Secretary Raymond Donovan, who had been executive vice president of Schiavone.

MTA Chairman Robert Kiley has asked MTA Inspector General Sanford Russell to conduct an investigation of the entire project, and aspects of the project are also being probed by the FBI, the federal Organized Crime Task Force and the federal Department of Transportation.

Schiavone drops EPA bids

By RICHARD T. PIENCIAK

The Schiavone Construction Co., along with former Labor Secretary Raymond Donovan and other company officials, agreed yesterday not to bid on U.S. Environmental Protection Agency projects pending the outcome of the New Jersey firm's fraud indictment for work done on the 63d St. subway project.

The statement of understanding avoids a formal suspension or disbarment, according to EPA representative Elly Seng. Schiavone has recently submitted bids on several new EPA-funded projects. Those bids Seng said will be withdrawn.

Seng characterized the pact as a

"consent agreement." But sources told the Daily News that the firm agreed to refrain from bidding only after EPA officials threatened to formally bar it from doing business with the agency, which frequently processes funding for major sewage treatment projects.

Seng said the agreement will remain in effect until completion of the Bronx case. The 137-count indictment in that case, still in the pretrial stage, charges that Schiavone and its officers filed false records with the Transit Authority and the federal Urban Mass Transportation Administration regarding the work of minority subcontractors on the $800-million 63d St. subway tunnel project.

HIS LIPS ARE SEALED

Donovan witness claims up-146 times

By RICHARD SISK

A Bronx courtroom echoed to the drumbeat recitation of the Fifth Amendment yesterday as an admitted mob hitman clamored up about evidence in the fraud and conspiracy case against former Labor Secretary Raymond Donovan.

Donovan watched quietly as Michael Orlando, 44, invoked his constitutional right against self-incrimination 146 times during a pre-trial hearing before Bronx Supreme Court Justice John Collins.

The hearing focused on a challenge by Donovan's former firm, Schiavone Construction Co., to the admission into evidence of federal wiretaps gathered in the probe of Donovan and the firm. Some tapes had mob figures discussing murders, drug dealing and political corruption. Orlando has been a federal informant since 1978, but his lawyer, David Gould, said he told his client to clam up because he feared federal officials would "bury Michael" with a series of separate criminal charges.

ON THE ADVICE of counsel, I'm invoking my Fifth Amendment rights," Orlando said to all questions from lawyers for Schiavone. Donovan once was Schiavone's executive vice president.

Orlando even cited the Fifth when asked by defense lawyer Robert Kasanof: "Are you going to claim the Fifth to every question?"

Outside court, Donovan ridiculed Orlando, a key witness in the case involving the alleged theft of $7.4 million for work Schiavone did on the troubled 63d St. subway tunnel.

"It disgusts me, this lying person," Donovan said. "He's a damned liar." Orlando, who taught briefly at a public elementary school in Shirely, L.I., in the 1960s, has testified about alleged meetings Donovan had with him and other reputed mobsters at the Super Bowl and other places.

Donovan, attacked authorities for giving Orlando immunity despite Orlando's admission to several crimes, including a postscript murder. "I'm not worried about this case," said Donovan. "I'm worried about my reputation, and he (Orlando) has ruined it. And he'll be walking out the door free. It's amazing."

Donovan, Schiavone and several other of the firm's officers were indicted last year on charges brought by Bronx District Attorney Mario Merola, alleging that the defendants conspired to defraud the Transit Authority through an arrangement with Jo-Pel Construction and Trucking Co., headed by reputed mobster Pellicano William (Billy the Butcher) Masselli and State Sen. Joseph Gallber (D-Bronx).

FBI/DOJ

Agent Denies Donovan Case Memo

News day 8/9/85 pg 15

By Thomas J. Maier

An FBI agent, testifying yesterday at a pre-trial hearing in the Raymond Donovan case, said he had not written or initiated a key memo attributed to him. The memo, on which the agent's name is misspelled, recommended ending an investigation into a hijacking in which FBI informant Michael Orlando had participated.

Justice John Collins, who is presiding at the hearing in State Supreme Court in the Bronx, told lawyers that FBI agent Stephen Morrill's surprise testimony had "ominous" overtones.

At issue in the hearing is whether tapes from a wiretap from the FBI's TUMCON organized-crime probe, in which Orlando was involved, can be used as evidence in the Donovan case. The tapes are part of Bronx District Attorney Mario Merola's case against Donovan — a former U.S. secretary of labor and former executive of the Schlavone Construction Co. — and eight others charged with grand larceny and fraud in the construction of the 63rd Street subway tunnel.

After yesterday's testimony by Morrill, a defense witness, defense lawyers charged outside the courtroom that the memo had been written by other FBI agents to cover up their own misconduct as well as possible crimes by Orlando during the early stages of the TUMCON probe. The FBI has been conducting an internal inquiry into possible misconduct by FBI agents in the failed probe.

Much of the testimony yesterday centered on a Nov. 30, 1978, meat hijacking in the Bronx, which the FBI and Justice Department officials used in January, 1979, to gain a federal judge's permission to set up the wiretap.

Taking the stand for the second day, Morrill testified that he had stopped investigating the meat hijacking about Dec. 6, 1978, after other FBI agents, who would form the TUMCON investigating squad, said the hijacking was related to their "sensitive" investigation. "When they [the other FBI agents] took it over, they'd consolidated it into their case," Morrill said yesterday.

Morrill expressed surprise when on Wednesday he was handed an FBI memo that he supposedly had written and initiated. It was dated Feb. 12, 1979 — two months after he stopped investigating the hijacking, he said. The memo, a copy of which was obtained by Newsday, recommended that the hijacking case be "closed administratively" because there was no sign of an interstate-crime, which would allow federal prosecution.

Morrill testified Wednesday and yesterday that he had not written the memo. "I have no specific recollection of writing the memo," Morrill said. "I was not the author of it." Morrill pointed out that his first name appears typed on the memo as "Steven" instead of "Stephen," its correct spelling. He said the initials were not in his handwriting. About the "M" initial for his last name, Morrill said yesterday: "That M sweeps up, and my M's don't sweep up."

Morrill said that on Wednesday he contacted his former supervisor, Milt Aldrich, whose initials also appear on the document. Morrill said Aldrich told him he never saw or initiated any such memo.

In court, Bronx Assistant District Attorney Stephen Bookin stressed Morrill's testimony, in answer to a hypothetical question, that the "most easy way" to end an investigation would be to administratively close it, as recommended in the memo.

Defense attorneys have claimed that FBI agents in the TUMCON probe urged Orlando to commit the meat hijacking so they could gain the legal grounds to begin a wiretap in a Bronx warehouse; the two agents who worked with Orlando have denied that claim under oath.

Reds Warn Donovan Informer

By Rita Giolli

Newsday Washington Bureau

Washington — A Justice Department official has notified Michael Orlando, a mob informer who is a key figure in the fraud case against former U.S. Labor Secretary Raymond Donovan, that he may be thrown out of the federal witness protection program because he refused to cooperate with the defense.

The warning was contained in a letter sent to Orlando's lawyer, David Gould, by Paul Coffey, deputy chief of Justice's organized crime and racketeering section. Coffey said that Orlando had an obligation to testify "fully and truthfully with the parties" in the state case against Donovan in the Bronx. Orlando, 43, was subpoenaed to testify as a witness by defense attorneys at a pretrial hearing on the validity of FBI wiretaps that Bronx District Attorney Mario Merola seeks to use against Donovan, a former executive of Schiavone Construction of New Jersey, and nine others.

Orlando was to be the star witness in the eight-week hearing. Instead, Orlando, who was not granted immunity for his testimony, took the Fifth Amendment 146 times while on the stand in the Bronx last month.

Orlando, a reputed mob hitman turned FBI informant, was asked by the defense if he had lied in making allegations against Schiavone and its officers, who are accused of grand larceny and filing false reports concerning a minority subcontractor on a subway project.

In his one-page letter, a copy of which was obtained by Newsday, Coffey referred to Orlando's repeated taking of the Fifth when he was called as a defense witness on July 31.

"In order to maintain good standing therein [in the witness protection program] Mr. Orlando is required to cooperate in all cases and matters and comply with all conditions agreed upon between your client and the United States at the time he entered the Program. Mr. Orlando was and is required to cooperate fully and truthfully with the parties in People v. Schiavone in order to maintain his status as a federally protected witness. Failure to provide such cooperation may result in termination of your client from the Program," wrote Coffey.

Coffey did not return a reporter's calls. His boss, Stephen Trott, head of the department's criminal division, said it would be inappropriate for him to comment about any action being taken against Orlando because Orlando is involved in the Donovan case. Both the FBI and the Justice Department have been extremely reluctant to discuss the Donovan case for fear of influencing it in any way.

Bronx Assistant District Attorney Stephen Bookin told State Supreme Court Justice John Collins last week that he opposed the granting of immunity for Orlando because Coffey had told him that Orlando was under investigation for a possible violation of federal racketeering laws. Bookin said Coffey visited him in his Bronx office to notify him of the probe.

According to Bookin, Coffey said that the racketeering case might be built, in part, on Orlando's admission to federal prosecutors that he committed arson in the early 1980s. Orlando made that admission as a condition for getting into the witness protection program, law enforcement sources said.

During the discussions in court last week about Orlando's testimony, Gould said it was doubtful that state immunity would protect Orlando against possible federal charges.

Yesterday, Gould said, "It was Coffey's threats to a great extent that made Michael take the Fifth Amendment to begin with."

He accused Coffey of "setting Orlando up" so he could remove him from the program. "They are doing everything they can to discredit Michael so they don't have to clean up the mess that they have," charged Gould. The Justice Department and the FBI have been conducting internal inquiries into what went wrong in a failed organized-crime probe, code-named TUMCON, that was based on Orlando's cooperation.

Gould said that Orlando's oral agreement with federal prosecutors requires that he testify "for the government" and not for the defense.

Gould said he was very worried about Orlando's safety if he was returned to the street, without the federal witness program's protection and aid in getting a new identity. "As far as I am concerned, they will be as much responsible for Michael's murder as the guy who pulls the trigger," said Gould.

According to Gould, Orlando is still in custody at a federal prison in upstate New York and in the witness program.

SUBJECT: TUMCON

On August 8, 1985, Special Agent [REDACTED] telephonically contacted FBIHQ Supervisor [REDACTED] and discussed any closing reporting requirements concerning these various twenty-nine cases. (Review of MIOG indicates in some instances (58's, 206's, 207's, etc.) closing LHM's should be submitted to FBIHQ. Supervisor [REDACTED] stated that as indicated previously, normal reporting requirements for the TUMCON special are being met by the bi-weekly summary teletypes and normal reporting requirements do not apply, i.e., no LHM's are required to be submitted in closing cases for this matter.
